My Story:

I decided to embark on my Emerald Star project journey for multiple reasons. I realized throughout my years in 4-H that I wanted to do more for my horse project. The project had provided me with ribbons, education, and being a teen leader. However, I wasn't happy with how prizes were being dealt with and I felt that the competitors deserved more. My initial goals were more focused on buying better ribbons for the competitors. But the more I worked with my advisor and the Emerald star interviewers, the more I realized how difficult my original goal was and how hard it would be to persuade others to support the horse project, rather than the other livestock projects. Throughout many hours and days of work for my project, I consider my end product to be extremely successful. But the amount of time and work that went into it, was slightly crazy.

As the two years progressed, I had to adjust my goals accordingly to what I actually wanted my event to support. I decided on the majority of the money going to the county horse project, and to specifically allocate the money towards trophy buckles. I originally wanted my event to be the same weekend as the "Kentucky Derby", which is a huge horse race which has traditions such as Derby Pie and large hats. I wanted my event to be Kentucky Derby themed, but the that weekend was the same as the CCC horse show. The weekend after, was CCC Fair. The weekend before, was a large California State Horseman's Association (CSHA) show, and I could lose a lot of potential attendees. We decided on the weekend before, April 22nd.

I wanted about $300 to go towards Xenophon. Xenophon Therapeutic Riding Center is a non-profit organization that teaches horse riding to children who are affected by conditions such as epilepsy, cerebral palsy and others. I really liked this organization and what it provided to create connections between children and horses. My original thought was to donate money to Xenophon, then I was reminded that 4-H cannot donate money directly. Instead, I decided to do a $300 donation worth of products that they needed.

I worked a lot with my advisor throughout the 2 years. During the first year, we were mostly planning for what to do during the second year. We met only a few times during the first year. In the second year of the project work, we met a few times, and then during the last 4 months, we called each other once a week and discussed what was on the list of "to-do's" that week. Things we had to do were, check in with each speaker to make sure they were coming, making sure that the insurance for the riders went through, writing letters to donors etc. It was my original plan to create a youth group for my event, this ended up not working out. The youth that I reached out to, I never heard back from or they had previously planned commitments. We did end up having a really nice group of adult leaders but limited youth staff.

Overall, I believe my event was a large success. We believe we had at least over 100 people attend. In total, including food sales, purchases of goods and donations, we raised over $2000. We had educational posters surrounding the event, which included information about CCC 4-H, the Tassajara horse project and the history of the Equestrian Center of Walnut Creek. Attendees really enjoyed seeing all the posters and learning more about the horse-riding community. For the tack sale, we worked for multiple years to gain many supplies. After the Sonoma Fires in the fall, 2 truckloads of horse related goods were donated to the victims. The victims of the fires ended up only using one truck load, and we were allowed to have the other. We got things such as storage trunks, blankets, halters and many other items. I also got horse related items from friends, and people I had never met before. We got a lot of clothes, because kids especially grow out of clothes quickly.

For food donations, I contacted about 10 stores, and only heard back from one. The Walnut Creek Trader Joe's was extremely helpful and generous towards my event. I learned that stores have a specific quotas of donations that they have to fill each month. Costco has a $20 donation limit per quarter for only one donation cause. Trader Joe's has a $50 limit for donations per month for 3 donation events. Trader Joe's had already filled their quota for the month, but the manager in charge of donations said that he was so inspired to help after reading my letter, that he supported us anyway. They had a $50 limit, but we ended up receiving around $60 in goods, which was unbelievably helpful considering that they were the only business that donated. They donated goods such as baked beans, barbecue sauce, trail mix packets and a few other goods.

At the event itself, attendees were extremely generous with donations, we received a $100 donation from the judge of our show, almost every person donated their spare change and bills. It was inspiring to see so many people willing to donate their time and money to my event.

Luckily, my advisor is on the management board for the venue where my event was held. She was able to get our insurance and approval of usage, without any issues that I am aware of.

I have close friends in Alameda county that live nearby, their family came to my event to help run the snack shack. Their help was greatly appreciated.

I have overall really loved my Emerald Star project journey. I have learned how to talk to an adult professional on the phone, how to leave many voicemail messages, and most of all, how to adjust to the things that are out of your control. Not every business is going to want to donate to your cause, not every adult is going to call you back. It's just what it is, and you try to make it work no matter what.

What worked:

- Calling my advisor on the phone once a week to create a manageable schedule of tasks
- Adjusting my goals to really target what I wanted to accomplish (don't just choose an idea because it sounds nice, choose it because you know it's attainable AND it's a good idea)
- Donating $300 worth of goods rather than money to Xenophon
- Advertising on as many horse related websites as we could find
- Researching and going out in public to find tack sale donations (it was difficult to find at first and then donations just came pouring in)
- Asking friends for donations (most of my friends have no relationship with horses, but they wanted to help out anyway, suggest donating items you need like drinks or utensils)
- Educational speakers (make sure to have them speak during lunch, otherwise, everyone leaves. The public and the competitors seemed to really enjoy learning about a variety of horse related topics)
- Calling people back regularly to really make sure that they're attending etc. (we had one speaker guarantee her attendance and then cancel a few weeks before)
- Donation jars! (some attendees didn't want to buy food, or had no interest in buying old tack, we received a lot of donations by the end of the day)
- Knowing someone on the management board for the venue of the event (they may not be your advisor but it was extremely helpful to have someone there early to help set up and open all the doors and also know where & how to get the liability forms)
- Contacting people in other nearby counties who may volunteer time to your event or advertising
- Using GoogleDocs to make comments and work on the document at the same time

What didn't work:

- Getting interest and support in my original idea of just having better ribbons and buckles (I had to target exactly what I wanted my event to support rather than just having a general idea)
- Trying to approve flyers last minute, rather than doing them months before
- Asking for donations from grocery stores only a few weeks before my event (do it waaayyy before hand)
- Not planning enough during the first year and scrambling during the last 6 months of the 2nd year (it really seems like you have time, but it just flies by)
- Creating an official youth group (it was a nice idea but we asked too early during the first year and too late during the second year and got no response)
- Not tagging and labeling items earlier, leaving my mum and I frantically labeling at 4 am the night before (it really really helps to do it sooner, sitting in front of the TV and labeling is pretty easy, cramming, however, not so much)
- Asking the horse project leaders for educational poster boards (we emailed multiple times and didn't hear back from anyone, do not rely 100% on people you don't know. It worked out in the end but make sure you have backup plans for everything)

To-do lists/Timeline

2016 meeting:

- Make sure application is updated with recent changes
- Created overall project goal: MY GOAL: EVERYTHING DONATED (flyers, prizes, food, volunteer time, arena)
- Make sure to have alternative arena- my event was in late April and had the possibility of rain (our alternative was the Danville Grange)
- Know what kind of donations to ask for: gift cards, horse treats, hoof picks, brushes (go shopping for ideas)
- Think of friends/family where you could get flyers printed & designed for free (I ended up designing mine with my advisor and only needing about 30 copies)
- Plan ahead: Labor day weekend show 2016- collect items?
- Plan ahead: May horse show 2017- collect items?
- Plan ahead: May horse show 2018- collect items?
- Ask horse show manager about being allowed to collect sellable items for 2017
- Ask the fair board about being able to get a booth at the fair to advertise for the event

09/18/17:

- Contact local feed store for sellable items (we didn't end up doing this as we had enough items but if you are lacking items, this is a possible idea)
- Advertise event through 4-H club's Facebook & Instagram page & website
- Advertise through Bay Area horse websites (ECWC, bay equest, CSHA etc.)
- Find out if there are rules for promoting companies/brands from county 4-H
- Call fair manager to find exact horse show date (also look at county 4-H calendar)
- Research local events to collect tack donations & advertise

- Try to promote local horse businesses (sometimes small local businesses like to support you knowing that you will publicly mention their business)
- Pick the date quickly (to make sure that you are on the calendar and the public can book the date), also pick reserve date (in case 1st choice is already taken)
- Other unused ideas: hat contest, broadcast previous Kentucky Derby winners, open ride day for public, clinics-trail/showmanship/dressage etc., advertising through presentation day and bringing flyers
- Clarify whether attendees need a horse to attend

02/27/18

- Choose speakers for educational component and call to confirm attendance
- Email county horse project leaders asking about homemade posters (see email)

03/06/18:

- Email & clarify with speakers about: topic of presentation, title of presentation, and description
- Call county horse resource leader to clarify how they would like to be involved with the event- would they like to run the show? How would they like classes organized? Schedule?
- Confirm that the judge is attending and clarify that the show is more gaining experience rather than competitiveness (our judge was Lauralye Casipit and she was wonderful)
- Will you have prizes? (we bought small ribbons from the 4-H mall and those seemed to work well)
- Make sure to have flyer approved by county 4-H
- Make sure that the links for the website, Instagram, Facebook, and the club website are all published and viewable to the public
- Create a schedule on how the classes will go in order
- Will the show be open to non-4-Hers? (my event was open for all)
- What will be the rules be for the show? (we used the county fair rules)
- Find an announcer for the show (our county horse resource leader did this job)

- How will registration be organized? (we had clipboards near the announcers booth and the competitors could sign up for whichever classes they liked)
- Will competitors be charged for classes? (I decided to have all of the classes be free but we had a donation jar nearby)
- Find out the liability procedure from the center where you are having the event, and also from 4-H (we had paper copies of the liability forms from ECWC and 4-H)

03/13/18:

- Make sure that the flyer is approved by the county
- Make sure that the event info is on the website
- Send another confirmation email to the speakers

Mid/late March 2018:

- Call food companies this week to check in and make sure that they got the letter
- Make a plan to pick up all food items and have a preferable date & time
- Find out whether you need to print more flyers
- Send the flyer to the county 4-H leaders to put on the website
- Post flyer & details on NextDoor
- Complete the lunch menu- bring a white board to the event to have the menu visible
- Send the flyer to the speakers to get their input

04/19/18

- Make sure that you've received & printed the liability forms from 4-H
- Find a local barn willing to donate their barrels for the day
- Have 3+ donation jars for the event (registration table, lunch area, and second hand tack sale checkout area)
- Make sure to have multiple volunteers running the snack shack and let them choose how they'd like to run the process

Hi,

My name is Cara [redacted] and I'm from the Tassajara club. I'll be competing tomorrow at the horse show and I should let you know some information in advance. I'm doing my Emerald Star project over the course of 2 years. Emerald Star Project is a project where I can choose a community service event of my choosing. My event will be horse oriented and Kentucky derby themed. I am planning on making an announcement of my event tomorrow. Since my event will be Kentucky Derby themed, I was going to play the Kentucky Derby race over the loud speakers and then announce my event and what I plan on doing. I just thought that I should inform you of what I plan on doing tomorrow so that it doesn't come as a surprise. The Kentucky Derby airs at 3:20 so that is when I will be doing my announcement. I will probably have my phone on me, so if you would like to get a hold of me, my number is [redacted]

Thank you!!

Dear Speakers,

Thank you so much for donating your time and effort to my event! I really appreciate it.

I'd like you all to be recognized on my advertisement poster. I've attached a rough draft. These are some ideas that Jane and I came up with for your title and the name of your presentation. Please let me know what you prefer to use. As you can see, our space is tight so try to use as few words as possible. If you want to use more words, that is fine, we will just reduce the font to make it fit.

I would greatly appreciate getting this information back from you by this Thursday, Mar 15th.

Thank you so much!

Greetings Emerald Star Volunteers,

Thank you so much for your support and we are really looking forward to seeing you this Sunday at the Equestrian Center of WC for the Kentucky Derby Day: 4-H Horse Show and Fundraiser. Find your name in RED below! A few things you should know:

Parking and where to check in:

We will have "Reserved Speaker & Volunteer Parking" if you are driving by car at the top of the hill beside the Snack Shack. Please come to the Snack Shack order window to check in when you arrive.

What Happens & When

6 AM. Jane, my mom, and I arrive to unpack the cars, unpack the food and tack, and start setting up. There will be a Honor system coffee urn set up for morning caffeine drinkers.

7 AM. Horse Show Registration begins. John and Kevin will direct horse trailer traffic & parking. Jane will be registrar and show announcer.

8 AM. Tack Sale Opens, Horse Show Begins. Sam G helps the judge with ribbons and class lists. Leslie (A.M. only), Catherine, & Cara are cashiers at tack sale.

11:30 AM. Snack Shack starts serving. Pulled pork sliders, hot dogs, baked beans, cole slaw, chips, derby pie. Lemonade. Sweet Tea. Marnie, Donata are leads. Alex, and Nikhita will help in the Snack shack during busy times, and float at other times. Horse show may need helpers to open gates and help move stuff around in the arena.

12:30 Informal Talks on Horses:

Cara ██████████ 12:30-12:40pm (Emerald Star Project)

Hetty ██████████ 12:40-12:50pm

Hi Mr. [redacted]

I am earning my 4-H Emerald Star by running a tack sale and horse show on April 22 at the Walnut Creek Equestrian Center.

I have collected donated tack for the last year and have priced it to sell quickly! Proceeds go to the county 4-H horse project and a portion of the proceeds will go to Xenophon Therapeutic Riding Center.

I am needing a little extra help at the cashiers table and am wondering if you were available to help on April 22? 10 am to 1 pm is optimal but anytime between 8 and 2 would be great. I am flexible on timing.

Knowing you are a financial wizard, I think you would be very accurate in adding up prices and giving change!

Please let me know if you are available.

THANK YOU, Cara

Dear Cara and Catherine,

Wow!! Thank you both & your club again so much for your kindness and generosity! It was fun meeting you both and chatting on Saturday. Our paths are definitely intertwined;) Thank you also for the photo.

I did pass on your 4H informational meeting night info to that 1 family who I mentioned is very interested. (She may attend both the Danville and Lamorinda meetings to learn as much as she can:)

Cara -I am going to send you now an email mail about the horse show and the possibility of having some singers come to help us with the opening ceremony on Sept.29.

Thank you again,
Danielle

Hi Contra Costa Horse Project Leaders,

My name is Cara _____ and I'm currently working on my Emerald Star Project, and I am organizing a fundraiser for our county horse project. Please save the Date: Sunday, April 22, 2018 at the Equestrian Center of Walnut Creek. Please share this with your project members!

Proceeds from my used tack sale will go to our county's horse project, and a portion will be for Xenophon Therapeutic Riding Center.

Looking for Input from project leaders:

1. Donations

I've been collecting used English and Western tack and riding clothes for months. If you have gently used and clean clothing or tack to donate, please email me and I will arrange to come out to collect it. No helmets, please. Please share this with horse folks who want to downsize their tack rooms.

2. Ideas for Clinic/Educational event

I have some club funding to hire a judge or clinician for a county wide educational event on the same day as the sale. If you have ideas on what your members need or would like, please email me. Showmanship clinic? Judging? Trailering in project horses for a pre-show tune up?

3. Advertisement

Do you have a good place to advertise my event this Spring? I can scan and email you my 4-H approved flyers. I plan to advertise to Next Door and Bay Area Equestrian, but I am looking for suggestions for good online classified ad websites.

4. Educational Posters

I'm also hoping to educate the visitors about horses and how much they mean to us. If you have posters about horses, grooming, tacking up etc.

I would love to borrow them for the day so that I can display them to show how much fun horses can be.

5. Helpers!

I would really appreciate some helpers. I'll need people to help set up tables, run the food booth, help cashier, assist shoppers during the tack sale etc. If you know of anyone interested in helping me on the day of the event, please have them email me and I can give them more details. This might be useful for members' record books.

THANK YOU!

Dear _____,

I am a member of the Tassajara 4-H Club in Contra Costa County. I am one of a few other people planning a community service event in our county. This project is called an Emerald Star Project which is similar to an Eagle Scout Project. 4-H is a worldwide youth-run organization that focuses on developing agriculture awareness and familiarity, as well as important leadership and citizenship skills.

I'm currently planning a project to help reduce prices of awards in our horse project for our County. I'm also hoping to educate the public about horses, since they are becoming more uncommon in California life. To reduce prices, I'm hosting a horse fun day event in April where I will be selling food and used horse tack. It will also be 'Kentucky Derby' themed- the Kentucky Derby is an enormous horse race in early May with traditions like enormous hats and Derby pie.. My event will be held at the Equestrian Center of Walnut Creek on April 22nd, 2018. I am looking forward to raising money for our horse project. Some awards, like trophy buckles can cost over $500, and most youth don't have that kind of spare change. If all the horse tack doesn't sell I will be donating it to 'Xenophon' which is a non profit organization that provides horse riding for the disabled.

I would like to invite _____ to help me support our 4-H horse project in Contra Costa county. I hope to raise over $500 towards reducing prices for horse show participants. Some items that would be beneficial to the success of my event are lemonade powder, water bottles, cans of soda, pulled pork, buns for pulled pork sandwiches, small bags of chips, gift cards for the purchase of derby pie ingredients, sweet tea, fruit salad, and granola bars.

I have a plan to publicize this project and I will be happy to recognize your business's contribution in my promotional materials and in later reports on the project, and through other communications to the public.

Should you wish to make a contribution to my project taking place in our county, please contact me. Or, I will follow up with you soon to discuss any questions you might have or to discuss your possible support. Thank you for your consideration!

Sincerely,

Look What You Can Do With Old Bits!

The History of Sweet Tea

It's easy to understand how sweet iced tea came about in the South. First, the summers always have been hot. Second, ice boxes and the rise of refrigeration made it easy to make the tea cold. Third, rationing of sugar during World War II encouraged creative and thrifty Southern cooks to add sugar to the tea while hot, so it took less sugar to make the tea sweet. The super-saturated elixir soon became a Southern staple and the undisputed drink with barbecue and fried chicken, and at fish fries, family reunions, and church suppers. That's because Southern gatherings are usually big, and large quantities can be made quickly and inexpensively.

Perhaps it's fitting that South Carolina was the first place in the United States where tea was grown and the only place where it was ever produced commercially. And, the oldest sweet tea recipe in print can be traced to a community cookbook published in 1879 titled Housekeeping in Old Virginia by Marion Cabell Tyree.

The History of Derby Pie

Derby Pie is a chocolate and walnut tart in a pie shell with a pastry dough crust. It is made with walnuts and chocolate chips (many unofficial recipes include a splash of Bourbon). The pie was created in the Melrose Inn of Prospect, Kentucky by George Kern with the help of his parents. It is often associated with the Kentucky Derby.

The name "Derby Pie" is a registered trademark of Kern's Kitchen, which registered the name in 1968. The company uses the name in the form "DERBY-PIE®" in official literature and advertisements. The recipe is kept secret, known only to a small group of Kern family members and a single Kern's Kitchen employee (who actually mixes the recipe today). Kern's Kitchen diligently guards the trademark and has filed more than 25 lawsuits to protect it over the years
